

Gems of Wisdom Heart of Gold

This book is a collection of some of the greatest inspirational speeches, quotes, letters, and essays given at auspicious occasions. Prophets, Sages, historical figures, folks from past and present are the sources in this mosaic of gems. A greater portion of the content is from Muslims but this book is not about religion per-se, it is about life. In some way, those who delivered these words, captivated their audiences with what they said and how they said it and in the process have given the listener much to reflect and act on. The author attempts to start a process of bringing fresh thought from scholars to our youth so that we not only learn from history, but also apply it to the real-world problems of today. He personalizes the book by passing on his and his parents lessons in life. Although this is not a how-to book on communication, specific speeches are analyzed and the common ingredients of good communication are discussed, including a new law of speeches. This is not just another feel-good book, or a book of quotes, or speeches. The author took a long six years to collect, refine, and compose, these precious gems of wisdom. From Prophet Muhammad (Peace Be Upon Him) to Muhammad Ali the words are few, the message is clear, the meaning is deep, and all strike a chord in the heart, the heart of gold. The topics are varied including knowledge, wealth, technology, social issues, spirituality, and leadership. Gems of Wisdom and Heart of Gold is an excellent book for young and old. The youth can read it on their own or it can make an excellent resource in schools to learn and discuss about Muslim culture and communications.
