

The Animal

The stories in The Animal are about the escapades of a group of teenagers who live in an Eastern Washington Town that was totally owned by the government. No one was allowed to live there unless they had passed the security check and then worked on the Hanford Nuclear Reservation (or were family members of these workers like Jim was). With little to do and no place to go, the teenagers had a lot of free time on their hands. The combination resulted in many interesting and amusing experiences for Jim, some of which are found in The Animal. About the Animal, Author L.J. Hippler says, From retrieving a car from a canal, to a close encounter with a hawk, Jim Watts paints a vivid picture of his teen years in Eastern Washington in the Animal. You'll find this not only a funny read, but an insightful and entertaining look at the unique time and place in history as well.
